1 Meta-analysis

This meta-analysis provides an evaluation of our interim report. It begins with a detailed examination of the strengths of our report. Next, the weaknesses are identified, and improvements are given. This document ends with a conclusion of what we have learned from the seminar.

We believe that we have written a good report with several strengths. The report has a specific title that gives a good idea of the content. It also includes a well-organized table of contents. Additionally, the report is written in a concise and clear language.

However, there are also a few areas for improvement. For instance, our report does not contain an abstract or discussion, these will be added very soon. Additionally the introduction could also be improved, as it fails to provide adequate context for our research. The introduction has been completely rewritten so that it now meets all the criteria.

Thanks to the written reporting seminar, we have realized that our report could still use many improvements. For example, we learned that the introduction should follow a funnel structure, beginning with broad context and narrowing down to the specific subject and purpose of the report. Regarding the body of the report, we learned that each paragraph should focus on a single idea, with sentences of approximately equal length. Additionally, the paragraphs should flow smoothly from one to the next via connecting words. At the end of the seminar, we were introduced to the KU Leuven writing support website, which helps ensure that our text meets all the criteria for a well-written report.
